2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: the amendment entered with the Request for Continued Examination has overcome the prior art of record.

The method steps in order to produce a folded sheet product comprising clamping a sheet against a fold blade with a clamp and moving the fold blade and a fold blade receptacle relative to one another with a static pinch point and two spring biased members (biased towards one another) are deemed to be patentably distinct over the prior art.
